Your Heart Health

No other disease is as detrimental to American health and welfare as cardiovascular disease. At any given time, an estimated 83.6 million American adults are affected by some form of cardiovascular disease. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports that heart disease is our leading cause of death, causing one in three deaths (over 800,000) annually.

Heart disease is caused by atherosclerosis, a buildup of plaque in the inner walls of the arteries, which narrows, slows, or blocks the flow of blood to the heart. The controllable risk factors for developing heart disease include:

- High blood pressure
- High LDL cholesterol
- Type 2 diabetes
- Smoking
- Being overweight or obese
- Lack of physical activity
- Using illegal drugs, such as cocaine

Warning signs depend on the type and severity of your heart condition, but you should know the common symptoms of heart disease, such as shortness of breath, dizziness, chest pain or discomfort, weakness, fatigue, or heart palpitations. See your doctor if you exhibit any of these symptoms. Visit www.cdc.gov for more info.

Preventing Food Illnesses

Each year, approximately 1 in 6 Americans get sick from food poisoning. It's not uncommon to hear about food being recalled or a new foodborne illness outbreak. Most people recover without any long-lasting effects; however, those who are pregnant, the elderly, or those with chronic conditions are more at risk for developing complications.

Prevent foodborne illness at your home by being conscious of food safety guidelines. For instance, avoid Eating raw or spoiled meats and eggs by checking expiration dates before purchasing and preparing food. Wash hands, cutting boards, and knives with antibacterial soap and hot water after handling raw meat, seafood, or eggs. Never serve meat on the same plate used when it was raw. Check meat is fully cooked with a food thermometer.

In addition, avoid thawing food at room temperature; instead, defrost foods in the refrigerator and do not refreeze food once it's been fully thawed. Remember to refrigerate foods quickly because cold temperatures slow the growth of harmful bacteria. And wash fruits and vegetables thoroughly before eating, especially those that will not be cooked (like fresh apples or pears) in order to prevent foodborne illness.
